

nity Media in the Information Age (Hampton, 2002). He is presently preparing a methodology textbook on new media research (Sage, 2003). One of his research interests involves the study of public discourse through Internet-based discussions. Jankowski is initiator and coeditor of the journal New Media and Society and editor of the Hampton Press book series Communicative Innovations and Democracy.

Gordon Jenkins is a Canadian consultant with Jenkins and Associates Inc., specializing in systems integration in the Internet with respect to both business and government. He has lived and worked in India, Singapore, Australia, Hong Kong and Sweden during the last eight of his eleven years with a private consulting company. He is at present working for the Canadian government in his home, Ottawa. His particular interest at the moment is Internet payments, as well as electronic government, electronic democracy, and electronic consultation. Mr. Jenkins is on the board of the U.S. International Institute of Business Technologies (www.iibt.org) in Washington, D.C., and is the editor of the Journal of Internet Banking and Commerce (www.arraydev.com/commerce/jibc/).

Grant Kippen is Country Director, Afghanistan, for the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs and is currently in Kabul, advising the newly constituted government of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan on founding a new electoral system. He was formerly cofounder and principal of the Hillbrooke Group, an Ottawa-based consulting company that provides marketing, communications, and strategic management services to private and public sector organizations. Grant has worked for the Coopers and Lybrand Consulting Group within their Strategic Management practice and the Prime Minister's Office under the Right Honourable Pierre E. Trudeau, as well as having served as a Special Advisor to the Honourable Lloyd Axworthy. From the fall of 1990 until shortly after the 1993 federal election, Grant was the Director of Organization for the Liberal Party of Canada, where he was responsible for organization and training as well as the integration of information technology related to the Liberal Party's 1993 federal election campaign.

Nancy S. Marder, a graduate of Yale Law School, is a Professor of Law and Norman and Edna Freehling Scholar at Chicago-Kent College of Law. Before joining the faculty at Chicago-Kent, she taught at the University of Southern California Law School and clerked for Justice John Paul Stevens at the U.S. Supreme Court, for Judge William A. Norris on the Ninth Circuit, for Judge Leonard B. Sand in the Southern District of New York, and for Justice Edward C. King at the Supreme Court of the Federated States of Micronesia. She was also a litigator at Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison in New York. Professor Marder has written extensively about the American jury system, including such articles as: "Juries, Justice the BNA Electronic Informational board of Information, editor of ICANNWatch.org. at the electronic commerce, nance, the regulation of efore entering teaching, Pro- bitration law in the London clerked for Judge Stephen F. John F. Grady of the North- Yale Law School and has an

of Political Science at the His dissertation, completed at er-Interaction Matters: The University of Maryland as a ols and Universities Founda- Maryland Executive-Legisla- as awarded an International olitical Science Association ellowship from the National nted his work at numerous s of the American Political al Association, the Midwest n Politics Group, UK.

D.) is the Robert F. Irwin IV s at the Wharton School, lectronic commerce law and ealing with the intersection ealing with the regulation in law, and high technology uthor of Building Intelligent ver. He has been editor or ncluding Journal of Law and and International Journal of sor at the Department of e Netherlands. He has been edia and other small-scale His publications include: A ss Communication Research dio and Television in Europe utton, 1996), and Comm-